Summary

A fun little fidget toy that has been refined to work really well and is surprisingly addictive.

This fidget toy is something I originally created for myself to get through the never-ending zoom calls, I'm sure most of you have experienced. Once I had designed the thing, I printed a few out and many of my friends wanted them, so I made some for them. Soon after one of them said I should sell them.

I created this over a year ago and now have been able to sell a decent number of them so I thought I'd post it here. They print the best in PLA, but PETG and FLEX are still pretty good alternatives. There is a mini version that is a fun smaller one. Reach out to me if you want some made for you.
