

Cockade - Kokárda

Daniel Josvai

VIEW IN BROWSER

updated 12. 4. 2022 | published 17. 7. 2020

Summary

Tomorrow is the 15th of March which in Hungary is the memorial day of the Hungarian Revolution of 1848 that grew into...

World & Scans > Historical Context

Tomorrow is the 15th of March which in Hungary is the memorial day of the Hungarian Revolution of 1848 that grew into a war of independence from the Austrian Empire, ruled by the Habsburg dynasty. A war that determined the modern Hungarian era and had a considerable impact on Central-European history.

The cockade (ribbon rose, or "kokárda" in Hungarian) originated from the French and Italian revolutions of the 18-19th century. It was a dress decoration folded from a ribbon with the tricolor of the country's flag and was worn by both sympathizers of the revolution and the rebels themselves.

The Hungarian cockade became a symbol of the Revolution of 1848 and is still worn on the 15th of March by Hungarians as a form of showing respect to their historical heroes.

I've designed this 3D printable version of the classic cockade. It's easy to print in separate pieces on a single color FDM printer which pieces can be glued together.

For a nice surface finish I'd recommend to print it in 0,1 mm or lower layer height.

To wear it on your clothing you can attach a regular safety pin with the included holder piece or use a safety pin specially made for badges.

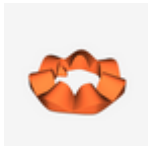

Model files

cockade_white_1.stl

cockade_green_centre.stl

cockade_white_centre.stl

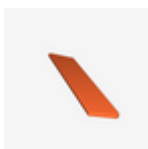

cockade_green_2.stl

cockade_safety_pin_holder.stl

cockade_red.stl

cockade_green_1.stl

cockade_white_2.stl

License ©

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons (4.0 International License)

Attribution-NonCommercial

- ✗ | Sharing without ATTRIBUTION
- ✓ | Remix Culture allowed
- ✗ | Commercial Use
- ✗ | Free Cultural Works
- ✗ | Meets Open Definition