<https://www.thingiverse.com/thing:4665052> provided a single piece model that was too big to print on Prusa MK3S, so a cut the model using Shapr3D on my iPad and added assembly points, supports, and cross-bars that use M3 screws and nuts.

40 M3 nuts and screws required to assemble (though may be overkill, it's solid when assembled. (Update, since a few folks have asked: Qty 28 M3x8 and qty 12 M3x12 screws.)

Update: I removed the file for left base piece as I accidentally posted it as a different size than the right base piece. Just print the right base piece twice and align together along the middle!

Print Settings

Printer Brand:

Prusa

Printer:
