Well, this is an obscure one.

Meet Xilonen! This creepy-looking polyp appeared in the Advanced Dungeons and Dragons adventure The Hidden Shrine of Tamoachan, which saw a 5e release in the compilation book Tales From the Yawning Portal. This model is meant to resemble the 5e illustration. In The Hidden Shrine of Tamoachan, Xilonen didn't even have its own stat block, it was basically a reskinned Roper. However, the creepy design of it all was just too irresistible for me to use a regular Roper miniature, so here you go. Who knows, maybe Xilonen will find its way onto a homebrew adventure. Have fun!
