Take a look at my Patreon

At Christmas, Santa checks who’s been naughty and who’s been nice with a list, a ledger and an elf on the night shift. A colossal operation, and it was missing just one detail: an owl.

This one applied on his own. Huge eyes, regulation hat and a scarf for the night shift: he already looks like he’s seen everything. He knows who ate the panettone before Christmas Eve. He knows who said “I already bought the gifts” at eleven at night on December 23rd. He knows who passed off a supermarket pandoro as homemade.

With the eyes lit up there’s no lying to him. Put him on the windowsill or under the tree and he watches. Until January, no breaks.

The model scales as you like, so it fits a 1 cm LED light, a 4 cm tealight or a 20 cm one: an owl for every size of surveillance.

This is the white version: the ideal blank canvas to hand paint, color in your slicer, or leave as is, elegant like a collectible ceramic.

Santa has the list. He has the eyes. If you’ve been nice, the front row under the tree is yours. If not, he’s already taken notes.
