If you haven't noticed by now I really don't like millions of little bags, and at every opportunity design something to do better. Here is a little box that I made to hold all the pieces for the game Juicy Fruits. Each piece has it's own place to go and the side of the box can even be used to hold all of the ice cream tiles during game play. Pull out the player pieces, fill the shops, and get playing!

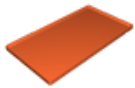

The lid is easily printed if your top layer is between .12-.25mm and supports are turned off. I personally like the look of .2, but .12 usually makes a smooth finish (depending on your build plate) and .2 has a little more texture. Happy Gaming!
