Roswell (the original of course) is my favorite live-action TV show! These three-dimensional models of the granilith and the spaceship are dedicated to the exemplary fans who kept it going by sending Tabasco...!

The spaceship is available as two different versions only because a printer might be having some difficulties with the round metal rods on top of the original. The second version does not have a space underneath the round metal rods. It looked like eight stands were used to support the spaceship, so a suggestion is to print that many copies.
