I loved the Celtic Trinity Tealight Holder (<https://www.thingiverse.com/thing:489648>), but it was too big for my printer's bed. I couldn't just scale down the whole thing either, because then a tealight would no longer fit in the cup. TinkerCAD to the rescue! I cut the object into three parts- the cup, the pillar and the base- because I knew they would print with less support that way.

I scaled the base and pillar to 80%, leaving the candle cup full size. After printing, I put it together with hot glue. Since the size mismatch of the parts is only evident on the bottom of the cup, it's invisible in use.
