Summary

From what I've seen this is a pretty rare Ring product but for those who do use it, it needs a box.

From what I've seen this is a pretty rare Ring product and it's $500 MSRP doesn't help. Though if you can find it cheap, this thing is great but needs a box to be installed in. Thus here is an exterior angled box for the Ring both for the right and left side of the door.

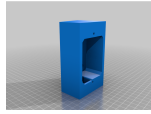

The design requires that you plug an ethernet cable before pushing the doorbell into the box and screwing it in, there is also a plug as cable width can vary.

If you are using this outside you will probably want to paint/clearcoat it and while you are at it make it match the exterior.

I used deck screws to attach it to the border around the door.
