Upon getting an Acer laptop I noticed that rather than a legacy DVD drive it just had a blank spot covering the hole. So rather than just carrying around dead space I made it into a useful drawer. I posted the model for an empty and provided some pictures of a customized one (feel free to customize your own). You will need to transplant the front cover (so the laptop looks the same) from the blank drive and the metal piece screwed on the back. The blank was held in with one screw on the bottom of the laptop, you don't need to put this back as the drawer holds itself closed with friction.

Please take a look at my DVD drawer collection for some compatible tools to use with it.
