Summary

Probably the best version of bases for your paper miniatures, more in description.

- This is my first ever project published online.

I've printed many of other bases before and i've never found the perfect ones, which made me get Fusion360 and began studying it so one day I can make my own bases.

One year later and many versions before, im publishing my final Ver1 (Standard) bases online for everyone out there who struggles like i did once.

These bases have:

- Enough grip to hold any type of paper (Even standard one when double-folded, thanks to 'tooth' on the left side of the clipper).
- Numerical numbers 1-9 for easier reading for DMs to track HP of NPC/Monsters.

(With one coat of acryl paint on top of the numbers will make the reading even easier)

-Direction pointer, this is purely for those games that have flanking system included in their house rules. Can be recolored with acryl paint or any paint for easier reading too.

-Lifted bottom angle of the base opposite of center for easier removal from the buildplate.

(Inspired by Teirale)

-Enough weight not to be moved by blow of the wind (Each weight less than 2 grams).

-Enough grip and surface to hold your paper steady without damaging it.

Beside that, these 9 bases are perfect to test your bed adheasion as you can rearrange them on every corner of the buildplate with the final one on the center.
