Here's a single family residence based on the earliest blueprint that has ever survived antiquity. The dimensions of the rooms are based on the traced lines of the engraved blueprint, though those walls don't quite align well with the listed dimensions. Quite interesting. If you want that, give this a try:

... include a note to the effect of "Hi Julius3E8, thanks for the [insert name of thing]... my life has improved five-fold on account of it and please accept this paltry amount in gratitude".

You're welcome! (in advance) :D

Also, feel free to peruse my other submissions which are almost as varied as they are many:
