A wall mount for the Google Home (full-sized), with some gnarly spikes a la Sauron's tower, Barad-dûr, for the device which sees all.

Hole spacing is 1.00" on centers. I'd recommend using #8 pan-head screws. I designed it to be a little on the snug side (i.e. the prongs actually retain the device), so if you'd rather a fit with a little more tolerance, scale to 105% before printing.

I only have gray filament at the moment, so please print in some funky colors & post pics, if you're so inclined.

Fast honeycomb is pro-tier infill. You can probably get away with no supports, if you don't mind the screw holes being a little sloppy.
