Who wouldn't want to have their jewelry guarded by their best friends!

They are designed in grateful playing possess of an upside-down dog and a stretching cat; they can hold your rings and decorate your space as well. The ear and tail of the dog provide stability to the shape and the extremities are in the right angles so you can load them with your favorite rings! Don't forget to use cat's tail

This simple concept maximizes utility (great for last bit of filaments) and usability by allowing to put them on any orientation that you like on any flat surface.

Recommendations:

- 0.2mm layer height
- No supports needed
- No brim needed
- Combine colors!

Did you Know?

While dogs technically do not have arms, they do have elbows and wrists.

Their elbows and wrists are part of the front leg anatomy. The front legs are also called forelegs.
