Summary

NES cartridges are like vinyl records: objectively not the best format, yet aesthetically pleasing.

Printing

Label: I used a basic color printer set on “high quality” and got acceptable results.

Cartridge: Resin will give you the best results. I highly recommend a tough scratch resistant resin. Shouldn't need any hollowing and should be a fairly easy print.

Needed Materials

1x Printed Label

1x 10x3 Magnet

Glue (I used CA glue for the magnet and basic glue stick for the label)

Labels

I have included a PDF with a sheet of pre-made labels, but for the more adventurous I have included my template that I used to make them. There are multiple good places to find high quality pictures/scans of the labels. Just remember that the top part of the label is “upside down” in relation to the main body of the label.
