Summary

An idea was born when I placed the freshly printed sunflower coaster on my cats head, so regal, but she only wanted pets

A dark summer night after waiting and staring at my prusa for 5 hours, allowing only but a single blink per minute to ensure nothing went wrong. I placed the newly minted coaster on my cats head; so regal and majestic she was, but she had other plans. She started trying to rub against my beloved coaster/cat head piece/crown which gave me an idea. One so brilliant and perfect that only a human, teamed with their cat could have forged.

initially I had the spike tipped massagers, but they were too intense so I labeled it as "feelthepain" I tried a couple different version and found the cut off cones to give sufficient scratch via the edge of the plateau without having too much pressure in any one spot like the original.

Edit to add: if you to the "feelthepain" version, place it on your forehead and apply some light pressure it gives a cool sensation like those scalp massagers they used to sell at the mall kiosk lol just a fun remix, it does feel lined but dont expect it to replace all your exfoliators and pet brush only some :)
