Summary

This covers the screen of my Lihan Bluetooth FM Transmitter so it doesn't blind me when driving at night.

I have really enjoyed my Lihan Bluetooth FM Transmitter (see link below) apart from the fact that its screen blinds me when driving at night. I devised this screen cover to block the light which solved the problem. I never looked at the screen after setting it up the first time anyway. If I do want to look at the screen, this cover is easy to remove.

The cover inserts into the 1.0A USB port (which I never use) to keep itself in place. It has a hole to allow the microphone to work still. It blocks the majority of the light and is no longer a distraction while driving at night. Additionally, the cover is thin enough that the 3.1A USB port can still be used with the cover in place.

Printing Recommendations:

For printing, no supports are needed. I recommend printing in PC, ABS, ASA or some other material that is resistant to UV light and high temperatures that car interiors can experience. I wouldn't recommend PLA for this although PETG might be sufficient. I printed with PC on a poorly tuned Ultimaker and it still turned out great.
