If you knock out the black lugs that hold the old pads in then you can simply bang them back into this model. You won't need the screws/nuts that are in the original model.

I printed at 25% for the first go but are fairly soft in PLU. Reckon 50% will be my next effort if and when they break.

Took 7 hours per pad to print though.

Have included the Fusion 360 file.
