Using the pokeball plus+ for sleep tracking, I had some difficulty with either it falling off the bed or deactivating when rolling over onto the button. Placing the device on a nightstand results in sleep tracking ending after about a half hour due to inactivity so this model holds it between the mattress and box spring where it can still pick up movement but won't be thrown off or deactivated.

The dish piece should be printed separately and attached with your favorite super glue. This model is not even close to optimized for strength, print speed, or material usage but it does the job well enough. Hopefully this helps someone out there!
