Summary

I liked Ted's original cheek rest... but I couldn't get the bolt out or back in without removing it. So I tried several

Sports & Outdoor > Other Sports

Print in the upright position with tree supports(they are a lot easier to remove and leave less scaring) on the build plate only for the back of the riser. I used Cura 5.4 and used a support blocker on the openings for the stock butt pad holes as I found that they didn't need support on my printer.

I printed in PETG 4 walls and 20% tri-hexagon infill at .20 layer height.
