This new model, just as the previous one, requires absolutely no supports (just a good filament and nice cooling)!

After my original raven model was so well received i decided to perfect it a little. I didn't like how the feathers on the top of the wings appeared flat, so I took my time to make them look more 3D, like they do in real life. Another thing was its symmetry - in real life animals rarely maintain perfect symmetry in their movements - so now it's also availiable in a less symmetrical version, with its entire body tilted a little to either right or left - depending on that you want :)
