Summary

The Double King from Felix Colgrave's fantastic animation can now sit on your desk and rule over all that he surveys.

I couldn't quite find a figure of the Double King that I really liked, so I decided to just make my own. I always sort of liked his sitting pose from the latter portion of the animation, so that's what we've got.

He comes complete with his two crowns and big murderous hands. The only supports needed should be for the eyes. Everything else will print just fine without them. I like a little weight to my figures so I printed with 3 shell walls, and 75% infill, but 2 walls and 25% infill is totally fine.

0.1-0.2mm layer height is best, I think.
