Didn't see a CotFSM fish car badge, so.....

FSM Fish.stl is the version you see in the pictures. I did it in 3 colors separated by layer. There are plenty of guides explaining the process that you can look up for your slicer so I'm not going to reinvent the wheel here. The fsmfish_hiqua(2).stl file is what I used to make the pictured model so if you want to remix it it's there for you. I didn't come up with this logo nor have I seen any copyright issues for it, but don't go selling it as original art. I promise I won't either.

EDIT: So the Facebook group found that this logo is by Lawrencekhoo and was released to the Public Domain. So shout out to Lawrencekhoo whoever you are and I'll name my next mermaid after you. So what you want, but as the teachings say, try not to be a dick about it. https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:FSM_Logo.svg

Anyway, R'Amen scallywags and have my beer and shots ready and waiting at the factory when I arrive if you beat me there. I'll do the same.

Print Settings

Rafts:

No

Supports:

No

Resolution:

Resolution: I used dynamic because I am and New Year isn't an option.

Infill:

Infill: 10ish? Whatever.

Filament: Filament Brand: You're buying, your choice. Filament Material: PETG for me if it's going to last out of doors, but anything will work.

Filament Color: All of them.

Notes:

Misc Notes: 'Swing Low Sweet Cadillac' was one of Dizzy Gillespie's best albums.

Post-Printing =====

Post-Printing: Slap a sticky back on it and display it proudly. You deserve it.
