PALEOCRAWL is a free, 3D printed board game that can be used with any 28mm miniatures, but the rest of the components will require a 3D printer to manufacture and assemble. In the digital files, I have included four 28mm Paleolithic tribespeople to get you started on your adventure, and more are available on my store at <https://www.punkinfigs.com/search/label/Paleo> for only $1 per miniature. I also have a few free ones on Thingiverse https://www.thingiverse.com/ellie_valkyrie/designs

THE STORY:

There is a sickness spreading among the people of the tribe. The glacial winds at the height of the ice age are cruel, but the evil spirits which haunt those winds are worse. The dead howl in the night, and even the hunters of the tribe have started to despair.

But there is hope. An elder of the tribe knows of a sacred cave where an artifact of great healing power rests, waiting for the tribe to reclaim it in its time of need. Heroes volunteer to make the journey, and when they reach the cave, they quickly realize that they are not alone.

The cave is full of the whispers of the restless dead, and the evil spirits among them are hungry for the warmth of life.

PALEOCRAWL is a game for one or more players. The sweet spot is about four players, but it can accommodate more than that without getting too insane. See the “MODS” section of the rules for games of more than four players.
