I designed this wardrobe splitter to divide my wardrobe and help with organization of various items to subcategories. This helps me not to confuse, which t-shirts I can wear to work, which are meant of home use and which I can use outside for sports.

The original is designed for 27mm bar, but by scaling it simply in slicer it should be quite easy to fit any wardrobe bar. Installation is simply done by snapping it into place, no additional hardware should be necessary, however you can optionally use a rubber band to squish the splitter around the rod after installation to secure it even more.
